

Chance Trahan Questions Donald Trump's Inaction

Incumbent Donald Trump Seems To Have Questionable Motives That Spark Nonpartisan Presidential Candidate Chance Trahan's Curiosity

WASHINGTON - May 19, 2020 - PRLog -- Donald Trump has a lot of complaints. In fact, it seems that all Donald Trump does is complain. One Presidential Candidate is questioning the fact that no action is being taken by the Incumbent Administration on these complaints. Nonpartisan Presidential Candidate, Chance Trahan, offers his insight.

"Donald Trump's top complaints are Obama, Democrats, and the Mainstream Media who are allegedly preventing him from achieving a reelection for US Presidency. However, he hasn't done a single thing in the Oval Office to help himself. His focus is on complaining. But, the problem is that the more I look into Mueller's Special Counsel investigation of the Election's Russian Interference, the corruption of Jared Kushner, and the lack of law repeals that could help Donald Trump, the more I can see why he's not taking action," says Trahan.

With mail-in ballots being sent out to allegedly prevent citizens from voting in person, suppression in the Mainstream Media, and oppression by incumbent Politicians of his campaign, Chance Trahan has had his Presidential Campaign work cut out for him during this election cycle. Still, Trahan doesn't complain often. He's taking action instead.

Chance Trahan mentions, "I'm all about progression. I'm one of the most progressive candidates out there, and all the incumbents seem to want to do is stop that progression dead in its tracks. I've been experiencing one setback after another during this whole 2020 Presidential Election fiasco, and all I can do is keep trying. I'm so busy working for the American people, and all of the people of the world, that I don't even have time to complain. If I complained half as much as the incumbent does, I wouldn't ever get anything done."

"Why isn't President Trump reinstating the Smith-Mundt act that Obama repealed? Why isn't he repealing the NDAA that was signed into law by President Obama? Why isn't the President appointing a fourth, fifth, or sixth member of the Federal Election Commission so that there's a Quorum that can vote to investigate Presidential Campaigns? None of this even makes any sense. Unless, of course, he's got something to hide. And based on how much Trump's been caught lying by the American people alone, it seems that he's definitely got plenty to hide. I don't want to cheat on my FEC reporting like all the rest seem to do. If a Quorum ever gets made, I don't want an audit to make me out to be a liar," says Chance.

The arguments and questions presented by the Nonpartisan Presidential Candidate, Chance Trahan, are compelling to say the very least. We too want to know why the incumbent President isn't taking action instead of complaining. Don't you?
